

The CTrides Emergency Ride Home program. A no-cost benefit for them, and you.

The CTrides Emergency Ride Home (ERH) program is a service provided by the Connecticut Department of Transportation for all Connecticut employees who regularly use a sustainable or active commute to work. If an unexpected emergency arises, the ERH program will reimburse commuters who meet the program's guidelines for their trip up to four (4) times a year.

The program offers several benefits for employers:

- Easy Administration - CTrides takes care of the administration and trip reimbursement processes.
- Program Flexibility - Employees can use the program to travel to various destinations, including their homes, park-and-ride lots, or their child's school or daycare.
- Eligible Transportation Options - Employees have a range of transportation options, including on-demand ride services like Uber or Lyft, taxis, and carpooling with coworkers.
- Generous Allowances - Employees are eligible for four reimbursements per year providing substantial financial support for their transportation needs.
- Convenient Reimbursement Process - Employees can easily submit their reimbursement requests online, making the process quick and hassle-free.

Get Started Today:

- 1 Schedule a meeting with your Outreach and Engagement Specialist or contact us directly for assistance.
- 2 Familiarize yourself with the program guidelines and complete the sign-up process.
- 3 Assign a designated company representative who will serve as the primary contact for the program.
- 4 Actively promote the program to your employees, encouraging their participation.

Visit CTrides.com or scan the QR code below for more information and program guidelines.

Follow us      